

Job Description: Junior Associate

PinneyAssociates is a public-health focused, science-based healthcare consulting company with offices in Bethesda, MD, and Pittsburgh, PA, providing health policy, scientific, and regulatory support to the pharmaceutical and consumer healthcare industry. Our experts work with clients to:

- Evaluate scientific, regulatory, and policy issues to guide development of pharmaceutical and consumer health products
- Evaluate the over-the-counter switch potential of pharmaceutical healthcare products and guide clients through the switch process
- Manage the scientific and policy environments to gain regulatory approval for new products and defend existing products
- Evaluate, support and develop new commercial opportunities including new products and claims

We counsel clients on high-profile public health issues including, among others, abuse of controlled substances, tobacco harm reduction and nicotine use, reproductive health, and management of chronic conditions. More information can be found on our website at www.pinneyassociates.com.

We currently have an opening for a Junior Associate full-time position starting immediately.

Responsibilities include research, writing, synthesis of information, problem-identifying and prioritizing, and interacting with leaders in the scientific, policymaking, and regulatory communities across the wide range of topics and substance areas in which PinneyAssociates consults. This person will work closely with senior staff and company principals.

This person will work across all our practice areas and be focused on collecting and synthesizing relevant information, including raising concerns relevant to the company and our clients as well as making recommendations for opportunities.

The successful candidate must be eager to learn, enthusiastic, comfortable interacting and functioning in a high-performance environment with a focus on collaboration and mutual success.

This candidate must:

- Have an interest in public health and public policy, consumer healthcare, and regulatory policy;
- Communicate effectively both in writing and verbally;
- Have excellent analytical thinking skills;
- Be highly organized and have the ability to work independently (but to know when to seek input when needed);
- Be able to effectively balance multiple priorities;
- Extensive experience with Microsoft Office Suite;

- BA/BS required. Background in psychology, biological sciences, and/or health policy would be of interest.

Salary will be commensurate to experience and we offer a generous benefits package.

The position's start date is flexible, though we hope to have this person begin by early June.

Job location: Bethesda, MD

EOE

To apply, please send a resume, cover letter, short writing sample (2 pages or less), and PowerPoint presentation sample to Amy Arthur at aarthur@pinneyassociates.com.